

Kori Hill Trek

Trip Overview

Join us on the incredible Kori Hill Trek with the Highland Eco Trek, which promises breathtaking vistas of the mountains and enthralling scenery. Crafted specifically for novices, this amazing bundle provides a retreat into seclusion with Mother Nature as your only company. There aren't many homestays along this modest trip, so you can be sure to go to bed comfortably at the end of the day. It's a photographer's heaven, with the most spectacular scenic splendour unfolding before your lens. Additionally, you may fully experience the essence of trekking in Nepal on this trek.

Entering the lively village of Sikles, a little but densely populated community home to various ethnic groups, chiefly Gurungs, marks the start of the experience. You embark on a multi-day hike from Sikles to explore the captivating Kapuche Lake, a magnificent glacier lake tucked away in an incredible setting. You follow your route to Kori Danda, the crown jewel after you have had time to relax and take in the peaceful surroundings of Kapuche Lake. At 3800 meters above sea level, Kori Danda provides unmatched panoramic views of the nearby natural beauties. Kori Danda is not like tall mountains; instead, it's a charming hill covered in brilliant flowers and verdant meadows. Those who rise early are rewarded with a strange scene of hazy clouds enveloping their surroundings. Not to mention their breathtaking show of golden-hued sunrises and sunsets that beautify this enchanted location.

From Kori Hill, a quick walk gets you to Nyamla Pass, which serves as the entrance to Manang, one of Nepal's most popular trekking destinations. Having enjoyed the peace of Kori Hill, the journey downhill to Tangting takes you through the interesting settlements of Kolashotar. The Gurung ethnic group is said to have originated in Sota, and the area is still dotted with the remains of old palaces that existed hundreds of years ago. The road drops steadily till it reaches Tangting, the conclusion point of this incredible adventure.

The Annapurna region's remarkable and lesser-known trekking path is the Kori Hill Trek. It provides a special chance to enjoy the beauty of the surrounding landscape while embracing isolation. Knowing that the Highland Eco Trek team is your reliable guide means that you are in the capable hands of people with extensive experience and familiarity with this less-travelled route. The experiences and memories made on this tour, despite its distance, will surely endure a lifetime. Come along on this lovely and rewarding hike where you may enjoy the beauties of nature.
